We’re Having a Party (the CHPA Convention and Election) and Nearly Nobody’s Coming!

First, I want to remind everyone that the CHPA is fewer than 60-days out from its annual business meeting and biennial convention and Board of Directors and Officers election and is fewer than 30-days out from the deadline for obtaining a drastically reduced hotel room rate at our event venue (the Indianapolis Hilton Hotel and Suites). You can find all the information you need to sign up for both the event and the hotel on our website http://www.chpa-us.org.

Next, I want to inform everyone that the CHPA has over 500 dues current members; yet fewer than 10 have signed up to attend this event so far. That causes me to be concerned as to why. Since February, we have been sending periodic snippets of information about the annual meeting and election, about the local events planned in Indianapolis, and about the on-your-own attractions available in and around Indianapolis. Indianapolis is a great place to visit and partake of the local attractions and cuisine. Therefore, I don’t think it is lack of information or knowledge about the annual meeting or the tours and attractions in and around Indianapolis that is causing the low numbers of participation. It must be something else.

So, as I wrote this month’s President’s message, I paused to consider several questions that arise when I tried to decipher why we have such a low participation rate at this moment in time. Those questions are: (1) Why, less than 60-days out from our biennial election of our Board of Directors and Officers, do we have such a low number of members signed up to participate? (2) Is that low participation rate related in any way to why each of us initially joined the CHPA? (3) What exactly did and do each of us expect to receive from our CHPA membership? (4) Why do each of us who have been dues current members for more than one-year stay on each year as a member, in other words, why is it that for nearly all of us who stay on, our only participation in CHPA is paying our annual dues and buying CHPA branded store items? (5) Why did over 700 former members decline to renew their membership? (6) What would motivate those former members to rejoin the CHPA? (7) What would motivate each of us current members to become more involved in the CHPA, either its governance and/or its programs?

Over the next few months, you will be receiving surveys designed to answer those and other questions. Please participate in those surveys. The honest answers to those questions will help us to improve the CHPA’s governance, its programs, and its service to its members.

Hoping to see you in Indianapolis in September,

Did you know that according to our By-Laws, our biennial convention, the time when we elect our Board of Directors and Officers, is held in the odd numbered years of the calendar (2013, 2015, 2017, and so on). That means that your Board of Directors is elected every two years for a two-year term.

Additionally, our By-Laws require 12 members to comprise the Board of Directors. The Chairman of the Board is always the preceding term’s President, i.e. the outgoing President assumes the Chairman position upon completion of that two-year term as President. Therefore, we will always elect 11 CHPA members to the Board during our biennial meeting. Some of those may be members who have sought re-election to the Board as permitted by our By-Laws. Others will be new Board members who are filling vacancies created by sitting Board members who have either reached the maximum period they may serve on the Board, or have otherwise elected not to continue as a Board member.

Serving on a Board of Directors/Trustees for any organization is a thankless task. Our By-Laws prohibit any Board member from realizing any financial gain from such service. If performed correctly, the role requires several hours of volunteer service governing the CHPA. That may include some travel and some financial costs (out-of-pocket expenses) for which the Director will likely not be reimbursed. But, you may be able to deduct those expenses on your personal tax return.

Five of the 11 Board members we elect at the meeting will become the CHPA’s Officers—President, Vice-President of Administration, Vice-President of Membership, Treasurer, and Secretary. Three of those officer positions (President, Vice-President of Administration, and Vice-President of Membership) have prerequisites to election to those offices. Each of those candidates must have been a dues current member of CHPA for at least a three-year period AND must have previously served on the CHPA Board for at least two years (not necessarily consecutive) in order to assume that respective officer role. The remaining two officers (Treasurer and Secretary) need not have prior Board membership, but must have been dues current CHPA members for at least one-year prior to election to the Board.

Seven of the current serving Board members have expressed a willingness to run for re-election. Even assuming that all of those currently on the Board who are eligible for reelection, and who have expressed a willingness to continue to serve on the Board, do get reelected, we will still have four known vacancies on the Board.

So, I’m asking each of you to consider serving on the Board of Directors for the next two years, especially anyone who has an accounting and/or finance background who would be willing to serve as our Treasurer for at least the next two years.

Thanks, and I look forward to seeing you at the meeting in Indianapolis in September.

Meridian Street, Indianapolis, IN. The tours (one Thursday afternoon and one Friday morning) will be conducted by BG J. Stewart Goodwin, USAF (Retired) who also happens to be the Executive Director. The mausoleum-style limestone and marble memorial was originally built to honor World War I veterans but now pays homage to Hoosiers who served during all wars. The memorial features a military museum with weapons, uniforms, flags, other collections, jeeps and even a Huey Cobra helicopter. The memorial has a working replica of the radio room of the USS Indianapolis that is staffed by Navy veterans. The Shrine Room, which has 24 stained glass windows, is not to be missed. The Indiana War Memorial is approximately ½ mile from the hotel. The tour lasts approximately 1 ½ - 2 hours. General Goodwin has requested his tours be limited to 20-25 individuals each, so if you are interested in this tour, please sign up early.

The second tour (Friday afternoon) is Lucas Oil Stadium where the Indianapolis Colts play their home games. This is a behind-the-scenes tour of this state-of-the-art sports mecca. Lucas Oil Stadium tours give participants an up-close and personal look at all the stadium has to offer. The tour includes a visit to the playing field, an NFL locker room, Lucas Oil Plaza, the press box, and numerous other areas (depending on availability) that are generally inaccessible to the public. Lucas Oil Stadium is located approximately ½ mile from the hotel. The tour lasts approximately 1 – 1 ½ hours.

The hotels around Greentown, IN fill up early, so if anyone is interested, you might want to investigate as soon as possible.

Airport Travel Information:

Indianapolis International Airport (IND) is 16 minutes from downtown Indianapolis off I-70 via Exit 68. The airport averages 135 daily flights to 38 nonstop destinations on eight major airlines. In 2013, approximately 7.2 million passengers were served at IND.

A destination and launching pad for both commerce and community, IND is strategically located just minutes from major US interstates including I-65, I-865, I-69, I-70, and I-74, all of which connect to the city's I-465 beltway. It is also within minutes of US 40, US 31, and US 52.

The eighth largest cargo center in the US, IND is home of the second-largest FedEx Express operation in the world. Approximately 2.2 billion pounds of cargo were managed at IND in 2013. IND is an important catalyst for economic development in Central Indiana and the Midwestern region, generating an annual economic impact of more than $4.5 billion for the area.

One of the first new airports to open in the US since Sep 11, 2001, Indianapolis cut the ribbon to its 1.2 million square foot airport complex off I-70 on November 11, 2008.

An Invitation
Bob Hesselbein

CHPA:

The Vietnam Helicopter Pilots Association cordially invites the Combat Helicopter Pilots Association to join us at the dedication of a living tree memorial within Arlington National Cemetery. The tree is dedicated to honor the sacrifice of the almost 5,000 helicopter pilots and crewmembers that died while serving their nation in the Vietnam War.

Arlington National Cemetery holds the remains of hundreds of helicopter crewmen who died during the Vietnam War. It is the burial location of helicopter pilots who earned the Medal of Honor, and continues to be the final destination of whole helicopter crews who remain have been recovered decades after the Vietnam War ended. Now is the time, during the recognized 50th Commemoration of the Vietnam War, to honor the many thousands who died flying helicopters during the “Helicopter War.”

Please join us at the Arlington National Cemetery Memorial Amphitheater at 10:00 AM, August 28, 2015 to honor and remember the helicopter pilots and crewmembers who gave the last full measure of devotion to their nation in the Vietnam War.

Respectfully,
Bob

CHPA Cook Book
Sue Prescott

For the benefit of those who haven’t heard, CHPA will be assembling a cookbook and we invite you to participate. We need your input ASAP so we can get the book ready for sale at the 2015 Convention. The response will determine if this book will be available then. Please submit the recipes to recipesCHPA@yahoo.com in Word or RTF format if you can, but we can accommodate almost any format (with a little more work). If you don’t have email, mail your submission to CHPA, PO Box 42, Divide, CO 80814-0042. Also, please remember, if you want to submit a recipe you copied from a website or book, change up the directions (they're the copyrightable content). Or let us know that they need to be changed; and please give attribution to the author. (This just keeps us safe.)
The Conversation

Jay Brown

Last night while in a reflective mood, I recalled a conversation I had with a neighbor awhile back. I first met my neighbor, “Gunny” while he was walking up the road to another neighbor’s house to use their phone. There was a storm brewing, the kind of storm you only find at 9200 feet in the Rocky Mountains so I invited him in to use our phone, and to keep from getting very wet. As he walked into the house he noticed my “I love me wall” and the framed awards and decorations above my desk, including the Master Aviator Badge. That led to a bit of a conversation and a very close friendship that has lasted years.

Gunny is part Ogalala Sioux and was US Marine Recon in Vietnam, 1968 – 1969. Those of you who were there, or are familiar with the history of the Vietnam War know the significance of that time frame. After Gunny left the Marine Corps and held a few civilian jobs, he returned to military service and retired after a total of 33 years federal service as a Master Sergeant Sniper with 5th SF. There have been many conversations over the years of where we’ve been and what we’ve done.

One evening I was with Gunny in his gunsmith shop. A small room in his garage with walls lined with photos of him on his pan head during a post Vietnam head-clearing cross country trip, numerous deer mounts, turkey mounts, hunting equipment and gunsmithing tools. Gunny was busy putting the finishing touches on a Colt 1911 while we talked. The topic of conversation was his time in Vietnam. He paused and looked at me and said, “I remember hearing helicopters, mostly Hueys, all the time, flying everywhere. I remember the way they sounded. I remember, on those occasions when I was in trouble, being outnumbered and literally running for my life the way they sounded when they were coming for me. It was a different sound. Those helicopters who were just ‘passing through’ had a rhythmic whop, whop sound. The one that was coming to help me sounded different, more urgent, even angry sound; more of a budda-budda-budda sound. When I heard that I knew you guys were on the way.” I explained to Gunny why the sound was different, how when we got the call of a small band of ground troops in trouble we “bent it over” and flew “balls to the wall,” jumping into a fight you didn’t start and had no part in to pull grunts in trouble out and take them to safety, sometimes to medical help, always away from the danger at hand. Even though most times you never knew whose bacon you had just saved Gunny wants you to know it was always greatly appreciated.
First Team Marks 50th Anniversary

SSG Bryce Dubee
Ft. Hood Sentinel, July 16, 2015

It had been nearly 50 years to the day since the last time many of them had stood on the field at Doughboy Stadium.

Fifty years ago on July 3, 1965, the men were young troopers in the newly activated 1st Squadron, 9th Air Cavalry Regiment, 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile), standing in formation as their commander, LTC John Stockton, reviewed the troops from horseback, wearing his iconic, black cavalry hat.

“Little did we realize that 50 years – plus a day – that such a legendary organization was being born,” said retired LTC Billy Williams, a former member of the “Bullwhip Squadron” who spoke during a ceremony commemorating the 50th anniversary of the unit’s activation here July 2.

Gathered on the field for the ceremony were Vietnam-era veterans from the squadron, Fort Benning leadership, current members of the First Team’s honor guard and band and Family members of fallen troopers from the squadron.

The squadron was the first of the division’s units to be activated as airmobile – a revolutionary new concept in warfare at the time.

“I’m humbled and honored to be a part of this event,” said COL John Cushing, commander of the 194th Armor Brigade and the 1-9 Air Cav. Regt. commander from 2009-2011.

Cushing addressed the crowd, reflecting on his time with the squadron, now nicknamed the “Headhunters,” and provided an update on the unit – currently deployed to Korea with 2nd Brigade Combat Team, 1st Cav. Div. as part of the US Army’s first-ever rotational brigade to the peninsula.

“Once again, the ‘Headhunters’ are leading the way,” he said.

Before the ceremony, Cushing reflected on the legacy of the squadron, and especially on the bond they share with the Vietnam veterans who came before. “It truly reminds us that we are part of something larger than ourselves,” he said.

During Vietnam, the troopers of the 1-9 Air Cav Regt participated in 13 campaigns, accounting for more than half of the enemy killed by the division and earned three Presidential Unit Citations and five Valorous Unit Citations. Three troopers from the squadron also earned the Medal of Honor during Vietnam – all posthumously.

“I’m very proud of my brother, I’m very proud of the men he served with, and I’m very proud of the present 1st Cav.,” said Karen Poxon Beckwith, the sister of 1st Lt. Robert Poxon, one of the fallen troopers recognized that day.

Poxon was just 22 years old when he was killed during fighting in Tay Ninh Province on June 2, 1969. His actions in aiding a wounded comrade and assaulting and eliminating an enemy bunker – despite being seriously wounded several times – resulted in him earning the Medal of Honor.

“I have never been around so many heroes in my life,” said retired SFC Walt Titchenell, another of the original 1965 veterans who recalled his experiences both training at Benning and later in Vietnam. “Old Bullwhip 6 trained us well right here.”

Describing the harsh living conditions and the brutality of combat to the audience, he said that the experience brought him and his comrades-in-arms together in a bond that few share.

“It was for the original guys, that’s why we did it,” said COL (retired) Joe Bowen, the Bullwhip Squadron association president and fellow 1-9th Air Cav. Regt. Vietnam veteran. “We’re closer than Family.”

Robert N. Tredway Award

HAI News Staff

HAI President and CEO Matt Zuccaro received an unexpected honor during his town hall meeting at the inaugural HAI HELI-DAYS event at Rotors ‘N Ribs in Goshen, Indiana. Milan Tesanovich, president of the Combat Helicopter Pilots Association, presented Zuccaro with the association’s Robert N. Tredway Award.

Zuccaro, a former combat helicopter pilot himself with the 7/17 Air Cavalry, was cited “for extraordinary support of the U.S. military helicopter community, U.S. military veterans and their families.”

“I’m honored to receive this award from such an auspicious group of my peers,” said Zuccaro. “All of us at HAI are committed to assisting veterans. There can be no greater cause than to support those who put themselves in harm’s way to provide the freedom we all enjoy.”

The Robert N. Tredway Award is presented by the Combat Helicopter Pilots Association to an individual or corporation for demonstrated accomplishments in support of the United States military helicopter community, U.S. military veterans with an emphasis on helicopter veterans, the Combat Helicopter Pilots Association, and the community at large. It is named for Col. Robert Tredway (U.S. Army, ret.), recipient of the Silver Star, two Distinguished Flying Crosses, four Bronze Stars, and two Purple Hearts during two tours of duty in Vietnam.
CHPA Presents Special Edition of the “Goin’ Home” Print to the 160th SOAR During the 2015 “Week of Night Stalker Activities”

On Wednesday evening, May 20, 2015, Alex Horony and his wife Edna, Randy Jones and his wife Judy, Rhea Rippey and his wife Marianne, and Milan Tesanovich and his wife Karen, members of the CHPA Board of Directors, joined together with world-renowned photographer Jimmy Moore and his wife Ava to present a special print of Jimmy Moore’s poignant photograph of a fallen hero “Goin’ Home.” The presentation took place during the Social Dinner event for Families of fallen Night Stalkers, which is held as part of the annual Week of Night Stalker Activities (WONSA).

Randy Jones, a CHPA Director and himself a Night Stalker Emeritus, attended the event in two capacities. As a Night Stalker veteran, Randy presented a beautiful large steel emblem of the Night Stalkers from him and his wife to this venerable unit. As a CHPA Director, Randy participated in the presentation of the special “Goin’ Home” print to the Regimental Commander, COL Michael J. Hertzendorf. The annual event is held in honor of the 160th’s Gold Star family members.

The next day, the CHPA Directors, their wives, and Jimmy Moore and his wife attended the annual memorial ceremony at the Night Stalkers’ GEN B. Doug Brown compound at Ft. Campbell, KY.

During the memorial ceremony, held outside the regiment headquarters in front of the memorial wall, COL Hertzendorf recited the last line of the Night Stalker Creed, “I serve with the memory and pride of those who have gone before me, for they loved to fight, fought to win, and would rather die than quit.” All of the hundreds of soldiers, family members, and invited guests who participated in that ceremony reflected on the 94 names of the fallen Night Stalkers and acknowledged the legacy of their supreme professionalism and sacrifice.
Nui Ba Ra
Donald “Deuce” Gaudreau

There are strange things done on Nui Ba Ra by the Deuce that loves his slick. There are 1st CAV tales that will make you wail with laughter and wonderment. Here is one.

In 1970 I was S-2 for the 229th Aviation Battalion, 1st CAV out of Bien Hoa, Vietnam. I will use call signs instead of names. We could have been Court Martialed for our adventures during that era.

Our call sign used for our unit was “Killer Spade.” Our unit commander was call sign “Slinger.” He was loved by his pilots and crew members. He was a George S. Patton type; a cigar in his mouth and his peace maker strapped to his leg. A Killer Spade hung from his pocket. He was a LTC who loved to fly, keep morale high and protect his troops, both ground and air. He was like a super bowl coach who wanted success, to be the best. He wanted his pilots and crew to have Distinguished Flying Crosses and Air Medals. We developed a unit with one slick to be an intelligence unit. We would work for Slinger to develop tactics, find out information for him, have more kills, keep morale high for ground and air and rescue and make sure all bodies were returned.

Our Huey crew consisted of Deuce as aircraft commander, Rummy as co-pilot, Lizard as gunner and Gofer as crew chief. Rummy was a Mexican-American Captain with a CIB on his chest from his first tour in Vietnam as an intelligence killer. He was trained by the army in kung fu and was fluent in Vietnamese, trained in an Army school in California.

Lizard was a boy who looked like he was twelve years old. He had a pet lizard on a gold chain who was always sitting on his shoulder. Gofer was always happy on speed from our survival vests. Lizard and Gofer had been together for two years. They refused to fly if they were not together in other units. Slinger got them from their other unit because of their great ability and teamwork as crew chief and gunner. Gofer was quick to get whatever we needed. Lizard always wanted .50 caliber even though they were against regulations. He was probably the best gunner ace with kills from the Huey.

The Huey, a D model, was brand new from Hotel 3 at Tan Son Nhut. We made deals with the parts people at Hotel 3 to help our battalion maintenance officer. We even got a Huey that was not on record as belonging to the 229th. This was our bird named “Belle.” We could mount it with two .50 calibers and get away with it on our secret missions.

Matty and I put together the missions from division every night. Matty was our Ops Officer; only a CW2 but a genius with tactics. Slinger put him there to establish secret missions. Before flight school he was a Massachusetts State Policeman, very aggressive. I got the job as S-2 because of my rank as Captain, my experience with Armor School and as an Infantry platoon leader at Ft. Carson before I went to flight school. I took ROTC at Kansas State, was an Olympic weight lifter at school and I loved competition and war, especially in a helicopter.

There were three extinct volcanic mountains in our Area of Operations. It was a flat triple canopy area and you could see one from the other. They were Nui Ba Ra, Nui Chua Chan and Nui Ba Dinh. There was a 1st CAV Command Area and fire base named “Mace” at the base of Nui Ba Ra. Nui Ba Ra was very mystic under local legend; it was their Shangri La. At the top, at that time, there was a communications base and radar... operation. The mountain was about 6,000 feet and, due to that height, about 30 degrees cooler on top. This made it a great place for the people who manned the communications and radar sites. They were mostly enlisted men from the Air Force. This was a crew who never wanted to come down and enjoyed the isolation and mystic time halt quality of the sister mount.

The crew on the top of the volcano was a total of twelve men who did not want troops of the CAV to provide security on their small perimeter. They had what they called a secret method to do so. The CAV agreed but had to supply food and all resupply for them with a logistics mission into a small wooden pad that only fit a Huey’s skids.

Our crew on Belle was the only ones to resupply them because of the classified nature of their mission. The log mission this day was arranged by us to spend the night there. We were invited to their weekly party on top. That special day we took off from Bien Hoa and headed out to Mace. In late 1970 the CAV was beginning to pull grunts out of Vietnam. We had many missions to Mace to provide logistic support to the Nui Ba Ra “gang of 12.”

We always passed Xuan Loc artillery on the way out. The ARVNS took over the artillery about one month prior. We had a problem with the arty base communications. The ARVN on the horn was supposed to speak English but I don’t think he could. The conversation went something like, “Xuan Loc Arty, this is Killer Spade, four miles to your east. We are crossing your area.” They weren’t usually firing at the time. The answer was, “Xuan Loc Arty, Xuan Loc Arty, Xuan Loc Arty.” I made a joke to the crew on the intercom that there was no problem. The doors were open and any artillery would just pass through. Then Rummy would get on the radio and speak Vietnamese and we would get directions. This was good for Belle but the other Killer Spades had problems passing through.

Next we arrived at the logistics area and Lizard and Gofer loaded up the supplies to be taken to the twelve man crew at the top of Nui Ba Ra. We already had six cases of Budweiser, six cases of Mateus wine, three bottles of rum and two bottles of Jack Daniels loaded up from Bien Hoa. The load was big; five cases of frozen milk in half gallon containers, two marmite containers of hot mashed potatoes, three cases of frozen T Bone steaks, three marmites of Kool-Aid, four cases of bread, one large box of peanut butter and jelly, one box of paper towels, one marmite of sliced turkey, gravy and stuffing, two cases of canned corn and peas and, to top it off, six cases of C rations. Oh, there was also a 400 lb bladder of drinking water. Not bad for twelve soldiers in Shangri La.

We pulled a hover check with a good indication and took off, hit translational lift, circled around and headed up to our 20 by 20 wooden pad. Another thing we had on board was six rolls of 35 mm film, “Gone With the Wind” for amusement for our party. There was heavy vegetation all the way up the extinct volcano and we stayed low level in the trees all the way up. There was no fear of ground fire due to the classified set up we had with the monks at the Japanese style Buddhist monastery about half way up Nui Ba Ra. It was built into the side of the mountain but difficult to see with all the vegetation around it.

Another 1,000 feet up was a Japanese WWII aircraft that stood in the middle of the trees. It appeared to have crashed there. We hovered up to it at the top of the trees to get another look at its condition. It was a two wing canvas single engine with an open cockpit and big Japanese zeros on the wings of the canvas aircraft. We found out from the monks it landed there in 1938. The head monk of the monastery was the pilot. The aircraft looked as if it had crashed yesterday. There was no wear on it or the canvas after all those years. Time stood still on Nui BA RA.

The security situation and supply situation was put together by the twelve enlisted crew and a head monk three months prior. When the Air Force set up the communications center and radar operation at the top, the head monk walked in on the crew and explained that Nui Ba Ra was a strong religious area for his monks. The local people in the area, including the VC, would not participate in violence in the area around the mountain, especially on the summit. The VC in the area were pushed by the NVA to spy on the summit and attack it but they would not violate their Japanese Buddhist religion. The NVA were mostly Catholic and didn’t believe in Japanese Buddhism. The VC and NVA in the area did not agree with each other, so they did not commit any violence on Nui Ba Ra. To get away with it, the VC told the NVA they would get communications info from the twelve guys and act as spies, because the American “hippies” at the top wanted drug business and would supply the monastery and local VC villagers with food supplies from the top to give weed and other drugs to the “hippies” to give to the supply helicopter and set themselves up. This is what was going on. We made a deal with the head monk who controlled the VC. The VC acted through Rummy as double agents and supplied the Killer Spades with valuable information on the location of the NVA units in our area. The Air Force and the Army classified the mission and allowed this operation to happen. I, Rummy, Lizard and Gofer all had Top Secret Clearances. The VC were on our side and provided false information to the NVA. This ended up with us having complete control of the area and the NVA moving out of the area. Now you can see why we were anxious for our weekly entertainment at the top.

We landed on the pad and unloaded, with the help of monks and the twelve “hippies.” At the edge of the perimeter were the VC villagers. The supplies for the VC were given to them to take to the monastery and villages at the bottom of the mystic mountain.

The set-up on the summit was unusual. The living area and area for the electronic equipment was between huge rock formations. They had complete generated electricity, refrigerators and luxurious sleeping quarters in an area that was a hidden temple 1,000 years ago. The party area had had an open top to see the stars, volcanic rock tables and benches. It could hold about 50 people. On one wall was a painted movie screen. In one corner was a shrine with burning incense. In the shrine was a fat Buddha, a gold Jewish Star of David and a copper Christian cross. Around it were small Christmas lights. Every time we walked by it we would put our hands together and bow.

The people were coming in; monks, VC, “hippies” and the Killer Spades. Belle was tied down on the pad and we had already called in to Slinger who would tell command we had to spend the night there due to low clouds and zero visibility at the top of the mountain; even though at the very top it was clear.

It was time for Shangri La. We had our Thanksgiving style feast then it was time for “Gone With the Wind.” We sat on our benches with an outside air temperature of about 70 degrees, drank our booze and sucked on our weed pipes (all of us; “hippies, VC, monks and Killer Spades), completely enjoying ourselves. “Gone With the Wind” was a long movie and we were ready for sleep when it was done.
